

ARTICLE NEWS

1. Acute Responses of Functional Electrical Stimulation Cycling on the Ventilation-to-CO₂ Production Ratio and Substrate Utilization After Spinal Cord Injury. Ashraf S. Gorgey, Justin Lawrence. PM&R. March 2016 Volume 8, Issue 3, p225–234
 2. Pulmonary rehabilitation to decrease perioperative risks of spinal fusion for patients with neuromuscular scoliosis and low vital capacity. Jang W. LEE, Yu H. WON, Dong H. KIM, Won A. CHOI, John R. BACH, Dong J. KIM, Seoung W. KANG European Journal of Physical and Rehabilitation Medicine 2016 February;52(1):28-35
 3. Gait efficiency on an Uneven Surface Is Associated with Falls and Injury in Older Subjects with a Spectrum of Lower Limb Neuromuscular Function: A Prospective Study Zurales, Katie DeMott, Trina K.; Kim, Hogene; , Hogene; American journal of Physical medicine and Rehabilitation .February 2016 - Volume 95 - Issue 2pp: 83-160,
 4. Comparison of a Cognitive-Behavioral Coping Skills Group to a Peer Support Group in a Brain Injury Population. Samantha Backhaus, Summer Ibarra, Devan Parrott, James Malec. Archives of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation. February 2016 Volume 97, Issue 2, p281–291
 5. Dextrose Prolotherapy Versus Control Injections in Painful Rotator Cuff Tendinopathy. Helene Bertrand, Kenneth Dean Reeves, Cameron J. Bennett, Simon Bicknell, An-Lin Cheng, Archives of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation January 2016 Volume 97, Issue 1, p17–25
-